Wheat Harvest Will Get Underway This Week

Normal Acreage Wheat in Harvest

Hail Does Much Damage Over Large Area of County Monday—Rain of .55 Inch

Harvest will start in Randall Randall county this week. A few farmers have tuned up their combines, and machines will be running in all sections of the county by the end of the week.

The need for harvest hands is being felt by farmers all over the county. More than fifty calls for help are on file at the office of County Agent W. H. Upchurch. The general impression has gone out that Randall county will have a short harvest and therefore will not need the usual number of harvest hands. This is wrong.

There are 40,000 more acres planted to wheat this year than in 1944. If this amount of wheat is abandoned because of the drought, or hailed out, there will still be a normal acreage of wheat to be harvested. There is no estimate of the acreage which will not be harvested. However, farmers are greatly in need of help in order to plow the land which will not produce wheat this year. This work comes before harvest with most of them.

Canyon received .55 of an inch of rain fell Monday afternoon. Little hail fell here, but almost total losses of wheat are reported in various parts of the county. The hail started in the southwest part of the county and extended south and east of Canyon into Armstrong county. Heavy hail fell northwest of Canyon, covering part of the territory which was hit two weeks ago.

The amount of damage has not been estimated. Only a few farmers had hail insurance due to the poor prospects for wheat.

Pineapples Orders By H. D. Club Delivered Here

Five hundred dozen pineapples from Old Mexico were delivered in Canyon Monday morning, filling a pooled order worked up by the Marketing Committees of the Home Demonstration Clubs of the county. Mrs. L. L. Byars of the Ralph club, Mrs. J. J. Wright of the West Side club, and Mrs. E. W. Schaeffer of the Centerview club composed the county committee that headed the club committees and coordinated their efforts as a county unit. 246 families participated in the order.

A conservative estimate of the amount of fruit that will be obtained from them—allowing for some waste due to bruised spots—is 15,000 pints of fruit and 2,000 pints of juice.

If this fruit were available on the grocery shelves a saving of 700,000 blue points would be made by these homemakers buying this fruit fresh and canning it. Besides the contribution made by these women to the war effort in preserving this fruit, it will help keep their families in good health by making it easier to see that everyone gets the needed two servings of fruit daily.

County Road Is Approved Monday by Commissioners

At the monthly meeting Monday the Commissioners Court approved the farm-to-market road which will extend 14½ miles south of Ralph and east to Wayside. This road was selected by the district engineer as being the most important country road in the county. The State Highway Department asked for approval for this road in order that work could be started as soon as men and materials are available. Hard surfacing this road to Wayside has been considered for a number of years.

The court rejected two short sections of road in the north part of the county, amounting to only 2½ miles which the District Engineer recommended. These short pieces of road do not serve a sufficient number of farmers, according to the opinion of the court.

Subsidy on Beef Cattle Available

Records on Sales Must Be Presented in Order to Secure Payments

Incomplete information received in the County Agent's office this week indicates that the 50c per hundred to be paid by Commodity Credit Corporation on good or choice cattle sold to slaughterers will be handled in a manner similar to the milk and cream subsidy.

A letter from the State office of the AAA indicates that a feeder is eligible to collect this subsidy on any sale of cattle weighing 800 pounds or more and producing a carcass grading A or AA.

A feeder must have owned the cattle for at least thirty days before their sale. The price received must have been not less than the minimum established for good grade.

It is understood that the minimum in this area at the present time is $13.50.

Cattle producers are requested to hold all sales evidence on slaughter cattle until details and procedure are received in the county office. Blank drafts and other supplies for making these payments are expected within the next few days.

City Water Rate Given Increase

More Money Needed to Meet Expenses Is Added to the Water Fund

The city water rate in Canyon has been increased by the City Commission in order to raise needed funds. Several weeks ago the City Planning Board was called upon by the commission to discuss city finances. Three propositions were discussed: 1. Increase the tax rate; 2. Add a sewer tax; 3. Increase the water rate.

After considering the proposals the City Commission decided to increase the water rate in order that additional funds could be raised.

For residences the future rate is: $2.00 for the first 3,000 gallons; 20c per thousand for the next 3,000 gallons; 10c per thousand for all over 6,000 gallons. The minimum bill per month will be $2.00 instead of $1.50.

For commercial uses the rate will be $2.00 for the first 3,000 gallons, and 20c per thousand for additional amounts of water used.

The present minimum of $1.50 is the only change made which will apply to all water customers.

Canyon has a very low tax rate, and low valuations on city property. In looking over the tax rolls the City Planning Board suggested that the equalization board for this year attempt to make a better equalization, based upon real value of property.

A number of increases will be made in values, if this suggestion is carried out.

Sgt. Hicks Tells of Horrors Nazi Prison Camp

He had been in prison camp since February 22. For this week he has been staying at home resting. From reports made by the family Sgt. Hicks is willing to talk. He says that he wants the people of this country to know how terrible conditions were. He feels that nothing that is told can ever make people here realize what terror and horror was experienced by prisoners in his camp.

Lt. Paul Foster Is Home Released Prisoner of War

Lt. Paul E. Foster, Jr. is home from Germany where he was a prisoner of war for 10 months. He will leave in three weeks for Georgia where he will be married.

Lt. Foster was bombardier in the leading plane of a formation which was invading Germany Flack hit his plane at 25,000 feet. The pilot signalled the other planes that he must pull out of formation. All officers and men of the crew bailed out as the plane burst into flames. It was the first time that any of the crew had used a parachute, but they came down safely.

When Lt. Foster landed, two German farmers stood beside him. All of the crew members were rounded up, but offered no violence. He noticed two young boys with guns stalking the crew as the Americans were taken into custody. The boys would have shot the crew members if resistance was offered.

Lt. Foster says that he has no protest of the treatment given the prisoners. "We received about as much as the Germans had to offer in food, which was not much." All of the officers lost weight, but Lt. Foster regained his strength quickly after release because of special diet given by the Medical Corps.

When Red Cross packages and food from home were received by the prisoners fabulous prices were offered to the lucky men for their prize food.

All of the released officers will report back for reassignment in 60 days.

With Cpl. Brasuel is his wife the former Imogene Martin, who has been making her temporary home in Fort Worth.

Cpl. Brasuel looks well. He says that he has not been too near the front too much of the time. He had not expected to get to come home so soon, but was detailed to bring prisoners to the states. 1,000 of the prisoners had been loaded when V-E Day came. These prisoners were unloaded and left in Europe.

Until he landed in the United States, he thought he was on furlough. When he was offered his discharge, he thought that someone was kidding him.

$60,000 Wanted Finish Museum

Randall County Citizens Are Asked to Donate More Money to Building Museum

Directors of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society voted unanimouly Saturday to raise $60,000 at once in order to complete the museum building. The meeting was held in Amarillo for the convenience of a majority of the directors.

H. C. Pipkin of Amarillo is chairman of the finance committee.Each director was called upon to make a canvas of his home county with a view of raising not less than $1,000. Directors have been appointed in 30 of the northern Panhandle counties.

Several of the counties have already raised $1,000, but will increase their quota in order to raise the additional $30,000 which is the minimum amount necessary to finish the building.

It was pointed out at the meeting that when the building is finished, there will be need for additional funds for cases and display material in order to take care of thousands of articles which are now owned by the museum, but which cannot be put on display because of lack of space.

Five directors of the Society were elected as follows: H. S. Pipkin of Amarillo, J. Evetts Haley of Spearman, Earl Vandale of Amarillo, O. H. Finch of Dalhart, S. B. Whittenburg of Amarillo.

Officers elected at the recent meeting in Canyon are: Newton Harrell of Claude, president; Hamlin Overstreet of Farwell, vice president; Harold Bugbee of Clarendon, vice president; L. F. Sheffy of Canyon, secretary; W. L. Vaughan of Canyon, treasurer.

C. R. Burrow of Canyon recently raised more than $1,000 on this campaign. However, with pressing needs for additional funds, Canyon citizens will be asked to contribute additional amounts.

O. T. Nicholson of Wheeler has presented to the museum his collection of guns, one of the greatest and most complete in the world. Mr. Nicholson is very anxious for the building to be completed so that the gun collection may be placed here for safe keeping. He has spent a small fortune and practically all of his life in gathering this collection of guns.

READ THE AMENDMENTS

This is the last week that the four constitutional amendments to be voted upon August 25 will be printed in the News. All voters are urged to read them this week in order that they may carefully consider the arguments for and against the amendments. You will likely hear considerable discussion of the amendments before election day.

So far as the News is concerned, we shall vote against three of the amendments, but support the other one.

As we indicated two weeks ago, we are very much opposed to the increase of legislative pay from $10 per day while the legislature is in session to the proposed $10 per day throughout the two year term. We also indicated a suspicion of the old age assistance amendment, and will vote against this amendment as being unsound. We can see no justification for Texas having the largest pension roll of any state in the nation. Federal authorities have protested the manner in which Texas has opened the rolls to people who are not qualified under the federal law. If this amendment is passed, Texas may wake up with no federal help. That would be a pretty mess.

Recently we indicated that we favored the amendment to increase the Supreme Court to nine members. After due consideration, we are going to vote against this amendment. The reason may be a little childish, but otherwise sound. The legislature refused to redistrict the state from a judicial standpoint, and eliminate a dozen or so useless districts. Governor Stevenson called upon the legislature to do this, but received no support. At the same time the Governor urged court reforms as to the Courts of CIvil Appeals, of which there are too many in the State. On top of this, the legislature increased the pay of all district judges from $5,000 to $6,000 per year. The Governor protested this increase, but received no support. The appropriation bill is on his desk—or was when this was written. He should veto the bill, and call the legislature back to redistrict the State before he signs any increase in the salary of district judges. With 75% of the members of the legislature being lawyers, a mere layman has little voice in trying to reform the courts of Texas. That's our reason for opposing this amendment. Maybe it is a long way round, but direct action seems to be impossible.

The other amendment provides for a vote for men and women in the armed forces without a poll tax receipt. This amendment is okay with us. However, the legislature had as well face the issue and plan for the complete elimination of poll tax payments in Texas. The United States Supreme Court has abolished the poll tax as an implement for voting. The few remaining states which require the poll tax had just as well face the situation. Personally, we hate to see the poll tax eliminated because of the million dollar tax for the public schools, and the fact that the poll tax provides an adequate system of registration for the voters.

Again we say, read the amendments, and then go to the polls and express your opinion.

There will be more wheat harvested in Randall county this year than was estimated a few weeks ago. This is always the case. We lost the wheat crop early, according to predictions; and the drought about ruined the whole crop, according to other predictions. But farmers who have been in Canyon the past week are not nearly so gloomy over the wheat prospects as business men. One thing is pointed out: summer fallowed wheat will make a good yield, and the practice has again proved to be highly profitable for the plains. Most farmers say that they will summer fallow more land because of their experience of 1945.

The bond quota for the 7th War Loan has been passed in Randall county. But the mere quota is not the goal. We would feel ashamed of our fighting men if they stopped when they reached their first objective. Total defeat of the enemy is the ultimate goal; adequate financing of the war is our goal, and this can only be accomplished when all of us have done something extra, not merely our share.

When will Japan fold up? This question is on the minds of all Americans. Such bad guesses were made as to the fate of Germany, that few persons are sticking out their necks. When the army officers said that Germany would be whipped in 1944, they prediction on the fact that the Germans quit in 1918 in order to save their country from destruction. A slightly different condition exists in Japan; 1. the Japanese army and navy are more of less independent of each other; 2. Business men have opposed the war, and the anti-war faction is said to be gaining in strength. To oppose Hitler in Germany meant sudden death. The Japs have changed leadership several times during the war, which indicates that the Emperor and the war lords are not all-powerful in the direction of national affairs. The only sure way for us is to continue preparing for a long war, but to pray that a speedy end shall come.

In 1946 the voters of Texas will have two elections on constitutional amendments. The legislature intended submitting three amendments to the people in the general election of November, 1946. However, in the rush of passing one amendment during the closing hours of the legislature, the wrong date was written into the amendment. The general election is on Nov. 5, but this amendment will be submitted on Nov. 7. Two views will probably be taken on this incident: First, the people will say that legislators are not entitled to more pay so long as they use such sloppy methods of passing legislation; Second, the legislators will say that if the people paid them adequately they would not have to rush the bills through and allow such mistakes. Capitol reports state that Governor Stevenson is amazed at the ambiguous wording of bills which are on his desk, passed during the final days of the legislature. The facts are that the Governor reads all bills before he signs them, whereas a majority of the legislators seldom read the bills they pass.

In spite of unanimous opposition from the South, President Truman has thrown his influence to the passage of the so-called Fair Employment act. This bureau will be dead after July 1 unless Congress passes an appropriation to continue its life. The bureau was set up under the war-power act by President Roosevelt. Just before he died he asked Congress to make this bureau permanent. The strong opposition to the practices of this bureau comes from the South. The administration of the bureau has been arrogant in the South. It seeks to place the negro on the same basis of the white when it comes to employment. It remains to be seen just what Congress will do with the measure.

Congress is making a study of military training after the war. Military men are sponsoring the compulsory military training bill. Many educational and religious leaders are appearing to oppose the bill. Various methods have been advanced. If you have a good idea on this problem, write to Congressmen and Senators giving your view. No doubt the lawmakers are seeking to represent the views of the people. In such a case, they have no way of ascertaining your views unless you write them a letter. It is assured that this bill will not be rushed through Congress without long debate. Compulsory peace-time military training is so foreign to the ideals of peace-loving America that Congress will not be stampeded into hasty action.

Based upon a Supreme Court decision, a negro will try to enroll in the University of Texas this fall. This was decided by a group of negroes, who are seeking to break down racial conditions in Texas. It will be a test case, and if the negro wins, you may expect to see other cases in Texas.

No wonder the Russians are suspicious of us Red Star says that the English speaking people are getting ready to fight Russia as soon as we are able. Why shouldn't they believe this? An English preacher, who is supposed to be a missionary from England to Russia, made this very statement in Canyon not so many weeks ago. If the English people are thinking about war, it will not be 25 years before they will be ready for such a war. However, we hope that good sense shall prevail among the nations to such an extent that the world may be able to live in peace for hundreds of years to come. Talking about the next war before this war is won is won is a very, very poor method of evading war in the future.

A lot of wise guys have been predicting that the peace parley at San Francisco would end in failure. Perhaps many of them hoped that it would end in a row. This group would rather see another war than to admit that nations can get along peacefully. But Russia has come across on the one big stumbling question—that right of veto. The fear of Stalin for the other nations, which have been suspicious of Russia, caused him to stand out to the last for the right of veto by any one of the big five. Stalin is unaccustomed to a majority rule, or of seeing his opinions overridden. All America hopes that the glum foreboders have been wrong again.

The blame for the trouble in Syria may be laid at the door of De Gaulle. This bird is altogether too fussy. He wanted to dictate the proceedings when the big three held their final meeting. He was peeved, and refused to meet Roosevelt. He sent French troops into Syria, hoping to lay the blame on England. He has been a trouble maker in the past, and will likely continue to be a bigger stumbling block in the future. After all, how little do Americans understand European politics.

Veteran Administration has been under fire for some time. Maybe some of the criticism is just and perhaps a lot of it is unjust. The facts remain that a shake up was needed to bring new administration. The President has named General Omar Bradley to replace General Frank Hines. Bradley stands high with the GIs of this war. He is considered the most popular field leader in Europe. He has an impossible job ahead to please all of the 12 million veterans who will come under his jurisdiction. President Truman scored another hit in selecting this popular military man.

It was refreshing to hear that the Representatives approved the Bretton Woods World Bank program Tuesday by a vote of 345 to 18. The only opponents were a group of die-hard Republican reactionaries. America wants a peace plan which will end wars. We are willing to do anything within reason to secure this peace. Reactionaries will find themselves in a small minority as the people swing into action to secure permanent peace.

The Russians say that they believe Hitler's body has been identified. It will be a great relief when it is assured that such identification is positive. Until Hitler's body is positively identified, we shall continue to have rumors as to some one seeing him at various places over the world. German officers are said to be in Japan helping correct the mistakes of Japanese army men. If Hitler is with the Japs, the war will be more easily won.

He's Been Deflated

Guess we are naturally dumb, but we cannot understand this subsidy business. Why tax Americans to pay a subsidy on commodities, rather than raise the price a little so that these commodities shall be profitable to the raisers? Americans will be taxed for subsidies on beef, according to the brass hats in Washington, so that producers and packers may make a profit. Yet a small increase in price will do the job without all this taxing business. Is it for the purpose of creating more federal jobs? And why should home owners be taxed for beef which is eaten in cafes and hotels by millions of people who eat no other place and pay no taxes? The whole theory of subsidies makes us dizzy.

We become thoroughly disgusted when we hear some one say: "Just wait until the boys come home, and they will settle this." If 125 million people who are staying at home are too lazy and indifferent toward public needs, the 10 million who are under arms cannot save the nation when they are discharged.

Dear Pop:

Once a year we get a chance to thank you for all you've done . . . helping with the home-work and getting us out of jams. (Which reminds us, Mr. Berkly, our neighbor, wants to see you tomorrow.) No kidding pop, we think you're a solid sender so we put our heads and greenbacks together and picked out some things we hope you like. The tie is from Jimmy. (Don't worry, mom didn't pick it out.) The jacket is from Steve. Hope he's home by next Father's Day. Sue gave you a belt that's adjustable after dinner. The slippers are from little Babs, or weren't you hinting? The shirt and sweater are from me. It's not bad having so many kids after all, is it pop?

Strolls Into Bank; Steps Out With Cash

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. — A well dressed young man walked into a bank in the heart of the financial district, removed his coat, and strolled over to a counter, where he helped himself to $10,000. Everyone thought he was a visiting auditor. The shortage was discovered after the bank closed for the day.

Glass Eye Bursts; Way to Get Hurt

Queer Accidents Reported By Risk Companies.

NEW YORK.—Of the ways in which people get themselves injured, there seems to be no end, a life insurance company reports after studying the latest batch of accident reports.

A glass eye exploded while its wearer was sitting at his desk. A physician had to remove glass fragments from the eye socket. A war time girdle had enough "zing" to sprain a Massachusetts girl's wrist. The garment slipped out of her hand as she struggled to hook it. In Missouri, a housewife was trying to hook another undergarment in back when her hand slipped and she sprained her right thumb and wrist.

A dentist tugged with such might and main at a molar that the tooth cracked and a fragment struck him in the eye. He was laid up for four days. A husband placed a chair in the doorway, where his wife, who liked to stay out late, would be sure to fall over it. But forgetting where he had placed the chair, the man fell over it himself and injured his toe.

On man hit the jackpot on a slot machine. Lights flashed and coins cascaded out, one 50 cent piece rolling under the cabinet. The man lifted the machine and had his hand crushed when it slipped. A Minnesota woman, who also hit the jackpot, got so excited that she tipped the whole machine over, fracturing her sister's big toe.

While most people take bicarbonate of soda for indigestion, one man unwittingly took an automobile accident—and it saved his life. Driving down a New Jersey highway, this man was stricken with acute indigestion and lost consciousness. His car plunged off the highway. Bruised and cut, he was taken to a nearby hospital where physicians said that if it had not been for the jolt of the accident, he might have died.

Has Weak Legs; Hikes 18 Miles to War Job

ELLWOOD CITY, PA. — Despite "poor" legs that kept him from army service, Everett Cooper hiked 18 miles over snow drifted roads to his war job here. The "splendid display of devotion to duty" won him a commendation from War Production Board Chairman J. A. Krug.

When deep snow canceled bus service from his home in Slippery Rock, Pa., Cooper walked to his job in the National Tube company paint shop here. Fellow employees informed Krug that Cooper had left home in the afternoon, trekked through the cold for 5½ hours, and spent the night here to be on hand the next day.

Krug, in a letter of commendation declared:

". . . It is only just to tell you how deeply I feel about your splendid display of devotion to your duty as an American, although unqualified for duty in the armed forces. I wish I could broadcast your example to all the men and women overseas."

Two Sleepy Yanks Make Beds on Stacks of TNT

IN BELGIUM.—Darkness caught one group of infantrymen without a place to sleep so Cpl. Curtis Strange of Elton, Miss., and Pfc. Howard O. Cook of Coy City, Texas, made beds for themselves in an abandoned stone house. All night long enemy shells pitched into the fields near by, rocking the old house with each concussion. Too tired to worry then, the two men had an entirely different view the next morning. Daylight disclosed that the house was packed full of dynamite and TNT—and in front of the building hundreds of gallons of gasoline were stacked up in metal containers.

"There was enough explosive there to blow up a city block," said Strange.

"I was using a case of TNT for a pillow and didn't know it till I woke up," Cook added.

Whale Makes Love to Submarine, Crew Reports

SEATTLE.—U. S. submarines not only are deadly weapons but have underwater sex appeal.

Lt. Gilson Rohrback related how his sub was wooed by a whale for days before the mammal discovered it was sparking up the wrong tree.

"This whale was swimming round and round," Rohrback said, "spouting and making a regular showoff of himself while we were surfaced. When we submerged we could hear the whale on our sound devices, coming nearer and making funny noises."

When the whale nuzzled the sub affectionately, the crew was certain its ship was being courted.

New Banana Plantation A Major Development

Starting a banana plantation is a very different sort of a job than planting an apple orchard, for example. Because of the ravages of disease, wearing out of soil, and other reasons, it is frequently necessary to abandon a banana plantation and move on to virgin land. . . . Drainage ditches are dug and the underbrush is cleared away. The land is then lined and staked and made ready for planting. . . . At each stake, 15 to 18 feet apart each way, a hole about one foot deep is dug and a 3 to 4 pound piece of healthy rhizome is planted.

After planting and before the sprouts appear above the ground, all the big timber is cut down, leaving a tangle of branches, logs and stumps. Then through this jungle, roads and railroad lines must be built. The tangled mass of timber soon rots away, making a good mulch and adding humus to the soil. It thus provides excellent growing conditions for the young banana trees. In about three months the plantation is ready for the first cleaning which involves trimming off the branches of the felled trees and cutting weeds and other tropical growth. This is repeated about every three months.

In the meantime roads are completed, railways are laid, housing for the employees is prepared and everything is made ready for the harvest. This is usually a race against time. In 12 to 15 months after planting, the fruit is ready for harvest. Cutting must be geared to shipping, however, because the banana has to be in the consumer's hands in a limited number of days after it is taken green from the tree. On the ship special equipment maintains the fruit at the proper temperature and humidity.

Sparkling Windows Add To Charm of Home

To make sure that windows will be bright and clean, do not use soap and water on the panes. Soap streaks the glass and is hard to rub dry. Clear warm water can be used if the glass is not too dirty. If grease and dirt cling to the panes, add a little ammonia or alcohol to the water to get the windows clean. Use four tablespoons of dilute ammonia for each gallon of water.

Windows can be cleaned and dried quickly and easily if the water or solution is sprayed on. The spray gives a thin, even film of the liquid all over the glass.

If you do not have a spray, the next best way to wash windows is with a chamois, which takes up water quickly and thoroughly and leaves no lint, as cloth often does. A piece of chamois may also be used to dry the windows. For windows that are left open often, protect the sills from rain spots and dust with a coat of liquid wax, after washing and drying the sill. Apply a thin layer of wax and polish until the wax is hard enough to provide a protective finish.

Good Seed

Does seed of oats, barley, wheat and other farm grains actually "run out?" A good many farmers believe it does. They think it's necessary to get new seed every few years because, they say, their seed "runs out." In other words, they believe that seed grown for a number of years on the same farm loses its ability to yield satisfactorily. Agronomists say that there's probably some foundation for such a widespread belief because seed on many farms does cease making satisfactory yields. But, the reason they say, is the accumulation of disease and other crop mixtures in the grain. It is their contention that if seed oats and barley are kept pure, and disease is properly controlled by seed treatment, seed sources of oats and barley can be maintained on the same farm and produce satisfactorily for an indefinite time.

Deficiency in Cattle

In cattle, probably the first noticeable symptom of vitamin A deficiency is a cloudy condition of the eyeball, and excess watering of the eyes. There may be loss of appetite. Calves are commonly dead or weak at birth. The cow may have difficulty in calving and frequently retains the afterbirth. She may give little or no milk. Ewes may have similar symptoms, and in addition may develop lambing paralysis, with resulting loss of the ewe and lambs. Good green hay, a good source of carotene which is the substance from which vitamin A is produced in the animal's body, is the preventive and the cure for this condition. Brown or bleached hay does not have enough carotene.

Proper Kraut Storage

There are two methods for storing kraut. First you can pack it in glass jars or tin cans and process it in a water bath. Or, second, you can store it in the container in which it was made by sealing over the surface with hot paraffin. Recent research, not yet completed, now seems to indicate that the second method will mean the kraut retains more vitamin C than if it is processed. That's providing the seal in the crock or jar isn't broken, of course. In any event, food preservation specialists recommend that kraut be stored in a cool, dark, dry place.

Frank Steen Writes Accounts of Sight-Seeing on Island of Okinawa

From Frank Steen, graduate of W. T. in the class of 1934, has come a most interesting account of what he has been seeing on the Island of Okinawa. This account was written more than a month ago.

"April 14. It is remarkably quiet here this morning for an island under siege. If it were not for the buildings gutted by bombs and fire and the occasional rumble of distant guns, one would think the whole world at peace. Our camp is on the peak of a terraced hill which overlooks the turbulent China Sea. Farther away along the backbone of mountains the dwarf pines form silhouettes such as we used to see in Japanese prints. The whole island of Okinawa Shima is like a dream of some precocious child. Every hill, every valley, every available foot of ground is terraced in neat geometric patterns. The tiny fields, no bigger than our gardens, are rich with vegetables and grain: rice in the lowland paddies, cabbage, potatoes, lettuce, peas and barley on the higher terraces.

"The towns are pretty despite the havoc wrought by bombs and naval gunfire. In the residential districts the streets are barely wide enough to accommodate one vehicle. The more pretentious homes are girt by high stone walls, while the modest ones enjoy the privacy of thick hedges which envelop the roofs. I imagine those walls were designed as a buffer against the cold, wet winds that sweep out of the China Sea.

"The homes are all very modest compared to our standards. All except the wealthiest families who build with stone and roof with colored tile, live in houses which are constructed of thin pine or spruce boards. Roofs are usually made of straw or grass, and in the case of the older houses, moss has crept in among the grass. Nearly every house has a stall in the back yard for milch goats and chickens.

"Inside, the houses are very interesting to me. When I used to read those blue geographies (I have forgotten the name of the series) back in the grades, I had no idea I would be seeing "how the other half lives" in this manner. The floors are simply frames on which thick reed mats are laid. Most of the mats are about three by five feet in dimension, but there are odd sizes to fit closets and irregular spaces. Either the houses or the mats are standard because the mats fit snugly together so that there is no crack between them.

"Partitions for the various rooms are made of sliding panels so that the whole house can be turned into one room or six. There are some modern conveniences such as running water and electricity, but the kitchens are still primitive, smoky affairs. Cooking is done over a stone fireplace in black, iron pots.

"Our camp is on the outskirts of the island's third largest city (population 50,000 in normal times, I believe). The houses are all deserted now, for the people either fled to the hills or were interned for safe keeping. Surely they were expecting trouble for the hills are honeycombed with caves where they have hidden their gear. There are signs in front of many caves indicating that each family had a separate shelter.

"This is a lovely climate. It reminds me of spring in the Panhandle without the wind. At night I sleep in my dungarees and sweat shirt and roll up in a blanket. By noon it is warm enough to go without a shirt.

For the first few days when we were down on the coast, it was uncomfortably cold at night. Now the atmosphere is just right to be invigorating. It is certainly a good change from the sultry island where we were stationed. I am sure we will never go back there.

"Something happened the third night I was ashore that scared the pants off me and was very funny too. One of the fellows in an adjacent outfit was sleeping in a hammock. I was on guard. The night was as black as nineteen tomcats. Suddenly the fellow let out a yell and started screaming for help. I was afraid to shoot for fear of hitting him. It was the most helpless feeling imaginable. As it turned out, a rope had broken on the hammock, leaving the unfortunate occupant dangling in such a position that his head was resting on his own helmet underneath. He was sure it was a Jap.

"Yesterday, just at dusk, some ill-begotten Son of Heaven started winging lead over our tent. The whole camp opened up on him. He is with his honorable ancestors now.

"This time I have seen very little fighting; however, I did witness a hot scrap between our Navy and a pack of Jap suicide dive bombers. Our camp was on a hill overlooking a bay where the ships lay at anchor. When the bombers came in, our ships opened up with all they had. The air was freckled with puffs of black smoke where the ack-ack burst. We counted sixteen falling planes. Most of them burst into flames and disintegrated before they hit the sea. The few that did escape were forced to jettison their bombs wildly. We stood on the hill and cheered as if we were at a football game."

Red Cross Course Being Offered

A short course in Junior Red Cross organization, program, and administration will be conducted on the campus during the week of June 18 to 22. The course is one of several which is being given in Texas Teachers Colleges by the Midwestern area of the Red Cross.

Mrs. Alice Moore, assistant to the director of Junior Red Cross for this area, will direct the special work here. Her course will be given in Room 103E from 1:30 to 2:30.

Mrs. Moore will emphasize ways in which the Red Cross work of school children can be of educational value to them and at the same time of real worth to groups which benefit from the children's services. Teachers who direct Junior Red Cross activities in their schoolrooms each year should get much practical help from the short course.

Students wishing to take advantage of the week of work may get additional information from Miss Ruth Lowes of the Education Department in her office, Room 105E.

During a question period following a lecture a man arose and put a foolish query to the speaker. The latter replied:

"The logic of your question makes me think of another. Can you tell me why fire engines are always red? You can't. Well fire engines have four wheels and eight men. Four and eight are twelve. Twelve inches make a foot. A foot is a ruler. Queen Elizabeth was a ruler. The Queen Elizabeth sails the seven seas. Seas have fish. Fish have fins. The Finns fought the Russians. The Russians are Red. Fire engins are always rushin'. Therefore, fire engine are always red. I hope this answers your question also."

Hero of Battle, Long Unknown, at Last Identified

Automatic Gunner Died as He 'Mowed 'Em Down' In Fierce Fight.

WITH 5TH ARMY, ITALY.—The "unknown soldier" of Battle mountain has been identified. Through the enterprise of Combat Correspondent Cpl. Gerald Root, former Lansing (Mich.) reporter, the identity of the hero of one of the fiercest fights in the cracking of the Gothic line last fall has been established as Pvt. Felix B. Mestas Jr.

Mestas, a Spanish - American Browning automatic (BAR) rifleman who came from Walsenburg, Colo., and whose father lives at La Veta, Colo., died in the battle.

The capture of vital Monte Battaglia, which is Battle mountain in English, was a savage week-long struggle. Men of the 350th regiment, now known as the "Battle mountain regiment," took the peak and held it against almost continuous counter-attacks for 7 days.

Record Cites Heroism.

At the height of one particularly vicious attack September 29, the official record noted:

"One unknown hero was seen standing on the crest of the hill in full view of a charging group of fanatical Germans and firing his Browning automatic rifle from the hip in order to get a better field of fire down the slope. With the heavy rifle he killed 24 of the advancing Germans. He accounted for 2 more with grenades."

Since then this unknown hero's action has been the talk of the regiment, but his identity was never learned until recently when Root began checking up. From Sgt. Cleo Peek of Arvin, Calif., Mestas' assistant BAR man, and Pvt. L. C. Burnett, a rifleman from Floral, Ark., who was in a spot to observe the Coloradan, he got the story.

Fired Off the Hip.

"Cowboy always liked to stand up and shoot that heavy gun from the hip," Peek recalled. His buddy, he said, was a husky 180 pounder who handled the 21 pound automatic rifle like an M-1 (Garand automatic).

Peek, himself a silver star winner on Battaglia, related that when he and Mestas took up their advance post on the height they had three packages of K rations.

After standing off several counter-attacks on the 29th, Mestas and Peek saw the Nazis charging up "like wild men." Almost out of ammunition, they knew they'd have to pull out. Standing up in his position and starting to fire, Mestas insisted that Peek leave first.

"I'm sure Cowboy killed at least 24 Jerries with his last clip," Peek related.

'Missing' U. S. Flier Saves Searching Party

CALCUTTA.—An American rescue party which became lost in the Burma jungle while searching for a missing flier recently was rescued by the very man they were looking for.

Pilot Lt. James P. McGuire, 27, of Fitzgerald, Ga., had bailed out over territory where Japanese patrols were active. Hours later, while walking along a road toward American positions, Lieutenant McGuire found a tired and ragged group of Americans, including medical officers, who had been searching for him. He guided them back to the road and to American positions.

Yank Soldier, Wounded, Says That He Is Lucky

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Pvt. Carl N. Bagby, home on furlough, says he has been so lucky since he enlisted in the marines at Evansville October 8, 1941, that he wants to change his first name to "Lucky."

He said surgeons removed nine shrapnel pieces from his body after the invasion of Peleliu, and he was struck in the leg by a Japanese sniper at Guadalcanal.

As another bit of luck, he listed his marriage to an Australian girl.

"Now I want to be lucky all the time," Bagby said in petitioning the court to substitute "Lucky" for "Carl" in his first name.

Second Highest Capital Sits Up in Mountains

The second highest capital in the world—next to La Paz, Bolivia—Quito, metropolis of Ecuador, sits in the heart of the Andes, almost two miles above sea level. Believed by many to be, from an artistic point of view, the most important city of the New World, Quito is one of the oldest seats of civilization in the Western hemisphere. Its history goes back not only to four centuries of Spanish influence but further to the time when it was the capital of the Inca empire and, before that, a settlement of the Caras Indians. Quito's geographical situation is greatly responsible for the fact that the city is today an artistic shrine. While the vicinity of Pichincha volcano—at the foot of which the famous battle for the independence of Ecuador was won by Sucre—has caused tremors and earthquakes which occasionally rocked the city and cracked buildings, causing extensive damage, the mountains have, on the other hand, proved to be for Quito a protective barrier from the world. Thus it has retained more of the characteristics of the Spanish colonial period than perhaps any other South American city. Only in 1908 was its modern development hastened by the arrival of the railroad. For centuries before, the capital of Ecuador had practically lived a life of its own, remote, isolated, aloof in the heart of its mountains, guarding its treasures from the passing world.

Coal Important in Economy of Nation

Mined now in 32 states, coal has become the nation's principal source of heat and power.

Coal was first discovered by American colonists near Richmond, but was not mined commercially until 1750, says the National Geographic society. The first mine was at Midlothian, 12 miles west of the city. The Richmond basin was mined commercially for more than a hundred years, and still contains coal, but little is now mined.

Steel, necessary for almost every type of defense equipment, is a measure of coal's importance. When Virginia coal production began, 11 colonies had ironworks, using charcoal to produce about 10,000 tons of iron a year, and small amounts of steel. Demands of World War II increased steel production by more than 50,000,000 tons a year. It requires about a ton and half of coal to make the coke to smelt a ton of pig iron to make steel. Since Pearl Harbor cobe production has exceeded all previous records.

Goat Breeding

Productiveness of milk-goat herds can be increased in much the same manner as that of dairy cows, the USDA has found. In each the principal reliance is on records of production together with breeding from the animals best by test. The merits of bucks to be selected as herd sires are judged partly from pedigrees and outward appearance, and partly from production records of closely related female stock. Herd records at the Beltsville, Md., research center show that in a single lactation period a good doe can produce milk weighing ten times her own average weight, and that does produce the most milk when four to six years old. Experience in the bureau's herd has shown that more sires are influential in raising milk yield than in increasing the length of the lactation period. Other desirable qualities are good fertility and prolificacy in both the male and female bloodlines. Records are useful in culling poor or irregular producers and in disclosing meritorious breeding animals that should bring about the greatest improvement in the herd.

War Advertising

American business contributed $302,248,775 worth of its own advertising during the last year in support of government home front information campaigns. Emphasizing the scope of the public service program launched immediately after Pearl Harbor, business participated in 62 different information campaigns last year, in cooperation with the Office of War Information and 27 different government departments. This compares with 34 campaigns and 17 government agencies served during the second year of the war, and 14 campaigns and 8 government departments during the first war year. The $302,248,775 wartheme volume recorded last year represented an increase of 6 per cent over the $284,888,441 estimated for the previous year, and marked a new wartime high for business support of home-front campaigns.

Storied Danube

Like the Rhine, Germany's upper Danube is a storied river of real and imaginary events that have furnished material for countless books, songs and legends. Peacetime travelers wrote of its ruined castles, its busy industrial cities and sleepy villages. Danubian lore includes familiar tales of early bridges built with the help of the Devil, his price set in souls of those first using the bridge. One such yarn describes a clever architect who tricked the Evil One of his prey by substituting animals as the first to cross. Other stories deal with tragic and happy lovers, religious miracles, jousts between dwarfs and giants.

It takes three and a half to four barrels of fuel oil to equal one ton of coal for heating purposes.

Worley Writes of Germany

Congressman Eugene Worley has returned from Germany and is writing a series of articles on his observations. Here is the first article:

Germany is a nation destroyed. Thousands of tons of bombs, millions of rounds of heavy artillery, and the steady pounding of tanks, machine guns and other small arms have literally crushed a nation of eighty-five million people.

Visualize in your own mind how Dallas, for example, would look after a thousand plane raid with bombs ranging in weight from 2000 to 6000 pounds. Nothing remains of Germany's principal cities but shambles and rubble. I was in or flew at low level over the following cities which were formerly key German points: Coblenz, Aachen, Frankfurt-on-the-Main (now General Eisenhower's headquarters), Mannheim, Ludwigschafen, Cologne, Weimer, Jena (home of the Zeiss Optical Works,) and other towns both big and small. There is no way on earth you can conceive of the absolute destruction of these places without actually seeing it.

Authoritative Cerman sources have conceded that Allied air power was the deciding factor in knocking out their war production. The Nazis were still producing an ample number of planes, both propeller and jet, but it was impossible for the Luftwaffe to get them aloft without gasoline and oil. The German refineries were of course the principal targets originally and all of them were completely knocked out.

It is my understanding that a great deal of publicity has been given to the notorious German Concentration Camps. I hope every man, woman, and child in this nation has had an opportunity to see pictures and secure the fullest possible information. Better still, I wish it were possible for every American to view these things in person.

I have never seen any sight so horrible and so repulsive as I saw at the concentration camp at Buchenwald. Try to imagine the entire population of a city the size of Amarillo being starved to death. This is approximately the number who were killed or starved at Buchenwald. The filth, stench, and diseases were unbelievable and death was undoubtedly welcomed by many of the political prisoners rather than a continuance of the living hell in which they were confined.

There were no sanitary facilities whatever. Each inmate received a crust of black bread and a bowl of potato peeling soup once a day. This was the complete ration day in and day out. Typhus and dysentery ran riot. Every conceivable kind of body parasites and skin diseases were present. I was in one barracks which measured about 20 feet by 200 feet in which 2300 prisoners were kept.

When we were there the Army had not had time to move many of its inmates. They still lay on ragged blankets. Dozens to a room too weak to move. A Texan, Colonel W. E. Williams of Austin, had been placed in charge of the camp and was exerting every effort to clean it up as quickly as possible and to prevent the spread of fatal diseases. He showed me some human skin which had been taken from the prisoners by the wife of the Nazi Commandant of the camp. Some of the skin had been made into lamp shades and other morbid and fantastic items which gives you some idea of how absolutely devoid of feeling were the Nazis running the camp.

General Eisenhower was allowing as many of our own troops to go through as it was possible to provide transportation for. In addition he was compelling German civilians from the surrounding communities to also go through the place and see eactly how barbaric the Nazi Government really was—if they didn't already know.

A distinction should be made between the concentration camps and the Prisoner of War Camps.

So far as I was able to ascertain there were no Americans at Buchenwald but most of the eighty thousand concentrated there were Russians, Jews, Poles, French and a number of Anti-Nazi Germans.

Next Week: How did the Nazis treat our own Prisoners of War?

Uncle Luke says: "They ain't makin' shoes any more. From now on it's everything for Victory and nothing for Defeat."

Polio Reported on Increase As Summer Opens

Last year was considered by health officials to be an epidemic year for poliomyelitis in Texas. Inasmuch as 78 cases of polio have been reported to the Texas State Department of Health so far this year as compared with 58 cases in the same period during 1944, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, has issued the following statements and suggestions concerning the control and prevention of polio which he urges all Texans to observe.

Control measures must emphasize clean-up campaigns and improvements in sanitation. Strict sanitary measures must be observed in all communities. Stringent efforts should be made to eliminate the housefly and to destroy its breeding places. All mosquitoes and mosquito breeding places must be eliminated at once. Every effort should be made to institute approved garbage collection systems immediately. Safe water supplies must be assured. Where adequate municipal sewage disposal systems are not in operation, it is vitally important to promote and maintain sanitary septic tanks and outdoor privies.

All swimming pools should, under rigid supervision, maintain those standards approved by the Texas State Department of Health. This necessarily includes maintenance of proper chlorine level. Where such standards are not maintained, those pools should be closed immediately.

All raw foods and vegetables should be washed thoroughly before use and protected from flies, filth, and insects. All eating and food-handling establishments should adhere strictly to the state law concerning the sterilization of dishes and utensils. Those restaurants with insufficient personnel to maintain approved sanitation should close one or two hours a day so that employees can assist in maintaining cleanliness and high sanitary standards.

Every effort should be made to secure approved milk. Rats and mice should be exterminated. Maintain in the home the same sanitary standards that are necessary in community life. Particular attention should be paid to personal hygiene. Excreta from polio cases and contacts should be disinfected and handled with the same scrupulous care as in typhoid fever or bacillary dystentery.

Over-exertion in children should be avoided and children should not visit homes where there is a sick child. It is advisable to reduce to a minimum all human contacts especially in children during the outbreak of this disease.

Early symptoms of infantile paralysis are headache, fever, vomiting, drowsiness, followed by stiffness in the neck and back. When suspicious symptoms appear, a physician should be called immediately. It is recommended that all cases be quarantined for 14 days. It is not advocated that schools, churches, and theaters be closed.

"Where I come from we line spies up against a wall!"

Notes From County H. D. Agent

Bugs are making their usual attempt to eat the vegetables in our Victory Gardens and something needs to be done at once to get them in check.

The insects that seem to be giving the most trouble at present are plant lice. Small black or green insects can be seen on the leaves and stems of plants, but they are not cutting holes in the leaves. This type bug sucks the sap from the plants and will kill the plants if left alone. It is well to examine plants closely to discover the insects when they first appear so they will not do too much damage before they are found.

Nicotine sulfate is used to kill sucking insects and must hit the insect to kill it.

The nicotine sulphate can be used either as a spray or a dust according to the equipment you have for applying it.

To make a spray use 1½ teaspoonfuls of nicotine sulphate (Black Lea 40) and 1 cubic inch of soap to 1 gallon of water. This should be applied when the temperature is 70 degrees or above and care should be taken that the spray hits the underside of the leaves as well as the tops. Repeat every 5 or 7 days until all plant lice are gone.

To make a dust: Secure a gallon can with tight fitting lid. Fill the can not more than half full with hydrated lime and put in 4 or 5 small stones for breakers. For each quart of lime add 2 tablespoonfuls of nicotine sulfate. Shake vigorously 5 minutes. Dust should be used within 24 hours. It should be applied when the plants are dry, no wind, and the temperature above 70 degrees. Repeat applications at 5-day intervals.

A certain young man was recently speeding merrily along the road when he caught up with a party of children on their way to school. He asked them if they cared to ride, and for an answer they piled into his Ford until it was so completely filled that one little girl had to sit in the driver's lap. She was a plump little thing and the driver cuddled her close to keep her away from the steering wheel. "Do you like school?" he aswed her.

"Yes, sir," she lisped.

"Do you go every day?"

"I haven't missed a day this year," the little girl replied.

"Good little girl!" said the driver, kissing her soft cheek. "Do you like your teacher?"

"Yes, sir," said the little girl, "I'm the teacher."

And the Ford nearly went into the ditch!

The postwar world in which we'll get everything we want by merely touching a button, won't affect the wife in the least. She just won't touch a button. Our shirts prove that.

We've often thought of looking up the family tree, but every time someone says we're a sap if we do.

There would be fewer accidents if drivers would keep their eyes on the car behind the car in front of them.

There were only 4,000 newspapers and magazines in the world 100 years ago. Today there are 94,000.

MOON WON

Sambo had joined a debating society, and the day after his first meeting he was questioned by a group of his friends.

"What was de subject of de debate, Sambo?"

"De subject were 'What is de most benefit to mankind, de sun or de moon?'" replied Sambo.

"And which side did you take?"

"De moon's," said Sambo, "I argued dat de sun shines by day when we doan' need de light, but de moon shines by night when dat light mos' certainly am needed. An' they couldn't answer dat, sah!"

Then there's the one about the GI returning from overseas, who remarked as he passed the Statue of Liberty: "Put your torch down, honey, I'm back home."

Then there's the husband who didn't speak to his wife for three days. He was too polite to interrupt her.

When your outgo exceeds your income your upkeep is your downfall.

Dallam Girl Wins Scholarship by H. D. Council

DOROTHY ROBERTS

Last year the Randall County Home Demonstration Council offered a $100.00 College Scholarship to an outstanding 4-H Club girl to attend W. T. S. C. at Canyon. Entrants have been judged and Dorothy Roberts of Conlen 4-H Club in Dallam County has been announced winner.

Miss Roberts graduated from Stratford High School this spring and will enter college at West Texas State this fall.

The following is the summary of her work as submitted to Miss Doris Leggitt, District Supervisor of Home Demonstration work:

I am 16 years old and have been a member of the 4-H Club for 5 years. During this time I have been poultry, garden, clothing and bedroom demonstrator.

In 1940 I borrowed money from my parents and started my poultry demonstration. Since then I have raised 1200 chickens earning $600 besides furnishing my family with meat and eggs.

As a bedroom demonstrator I added shelves to my closet, built shoe racks, made a dressing table from two orange crates and an old piano bench, made curtains and bedspread, and with Mother's help papered the walls and varnished the floors.

During the time I have been clothing demonstrator, I have made 3 slips, 5 aprons, 2 housecoats, 34 dresses, 5 blouses, 7 skirts, 3 suits, 3 pairs of pajamas and 4 playsuits. Besides making clothing for myself, I have made clothes for my mother, sisters and nephews.

From my gardens and our orchards during this time I canned and helped can 3425 quarts of vegetables and 2550 quarts of fruit.

As a club member I have served as Club President, Secretary-Treasurer, reporter and program chairman. I am now Chairman of the 4-H Council.

In 1940 I won first place on my 4-H Scrapbook, sewing box and housecoat at our Achievement Day. I entered some of my canned foods in the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo in 1941 and won first place on grape jelly, second on the story of my 4-H Club work and third on canned peaches. By doing outstanding work in Dallam county the same year, I won a trip to College Station to take a Short Course in 4-H Club Work. My chickens have won for me 13 first, 14 second, 8 third, and 3 fourth prize ribbons in the 1942, 1943, and 1944 Dalhart Poultry Shows.

In 1942 my club gave me the honor of being the best all-around club girl. In 1943 I won the Girl Star Award in our County and was selected as a member of the Talent Club. As a winner I received $25.00. In the same year my exhibit at the annual 4-H Achievement Day was first place.

From my poultry, some lambs that I did not mention in detail, and from taking care of neighbor's children, I now have $700 in War Bonds.

With four brothers in the service, and only one brother at home with my mother and father, I have had more than usual to do. I help my father disk with the tractor, herd cattle in the afternoons, drive a truck, gather corn, set out 2000 sweet potato plants, helped mother paper six rooms of the house, kemtone the kitchen and painted the woodwork. I also help care for the house and prepare the meals. When my last brother left for the army, he was shingling the house. There was no one to finish, so I took over the job and completed it.

In this year of 1945, I have started my club work with a desire to accomplish more than I have in the past few years and to better serve the club in every way possible. I want to continue to work hard in my 4-H Club so that I might better myself and better serve others, to make the best better and to live so that the world may be a little better because of the little things I do.

Miss Billy Thompson and Master Buddy Thompson, children of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Thompson underwent tonsillectomies yesterday.

J. D. Barker left Monday for Houston where he is attending to business and attending the convention of the Texas Bar Association.

Mrs. W. L. Rice, Dana Lou, Mary Sue and Bobbie are in Sand Springs, Oklahoma visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Montgomery.

Mrs. Bert Pickering of Los Angeles, spent several days last week in the home of her sister, Mrs. J. W. McCrerey.

Mrs. Betty Joe Foster Bryan of Bell Flower, California visited last week in the home of Mrs. J. J. Walker.

Mrs. Lucy Minturn of Salem, Oregon, is visiting at the home of her sister, Miss Pauline Brigham.

Misses Mary and Martha Hanna from Borger visited with Miss Evelyn Black over the week end.

Mrs. W. B. Campbell has returned from a visit to her daughter, who lives at Olton, Texas.

Mrs. T. S. Maxwell went to Dallas and Fort Worth to market this week.

Judge E. L. Pitts Spoke to Father-Son Banquet

Judge E. L. Pitts of the District Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo addressed a Father-Son Banquet of More than a hundred guests at the First Baptist Church in Canyon Tuesday night, June 12. The meeting was sponsored by the Brotherhood of the local church with James I Payton as president. The program was arranged by G. B. Heath and included a solo by Bradford Bullard of Shamrock and a duet by Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hillier of Canyon. Guests were present from other churches than the Baptist.

The Judge directed his message to both fathers and sons. He said there are three bases of human action: judgment of reason; instinct or natural impulse; and passionate temper. Proper co-ordination of these toward worthy ends in every boy's life is the responsibility of every father. The boy who is permitted to prowl all night in the family car and then sleep all day, with all expenses paid from the family budget, has no chance in life, said the judge. "Every boy should be taught the principles of honesty or he will never make a good citizen." "No generation has ever needed more honest men of great vision than the one into which the boys of today are entering."

Other officers of the local Baptist Brotherhood include W. H. Harden as Membership Vice-President; Dr. Lee L. Johnson chairman of Committee on Education; and Arthur K. Goodman, chairman of Committee on Worship.

A merchant heard that the natives of an island in the South Seas had more gold than they knew what to do with, so he decided to help them out. He sailed to their island with a boatload of onions. The natives had never tasted onions, and were delighted with them; they exchanged a ship load of gold for the onions.

The merchant's business rival was enraged when he heard of this, but decided that if the natives liked onions they would surely like garlic better. He therefore took them a ship load of garlic, and, true enough, they were delighted.

When he asked for gold in return, they told him they wouldn't think of giving him anything so common, and insisted upon turning over to him their most prized posession—the shipload of onions!

"Dat suits me fine, sah," replied the old Negro, "but effen you dies fust, Ah wants you to promise me you'll come back in the daytime."

The Big Push Is On--Have We Done Our Best?

Husband Saves Wife And Then Falls Dead

NEW YORK. — Abe Richmond, 52, saved his wife's life when flames swept through their tiny dry-goods store. "Don't cry, Sarah," Richmond said after leading her to the street. "Don't you know I always take care of you?" Then he coughed and fell dead at her feet, a victim of smoke poisoning.

'Draft Dodger's' Smile Is Winner

Grin Ends in Release When He Tells His Story.

KANSAS CITY. — Red-haired George Lee Williams, 21, was elated when police arrested him to be held for the FBI in California where they said he had failed to report for induction into the armed forces.

"That's swell," he grinned, when they told him to come along to jail and the FBI would see that he went into the army.

His happiness was so great that he made the mistake of telling the officers his story:

"For two days," he said, "I stood in line, first for the army, then for the navy. They wouldn't take me."

He registered with a Kansas City draft board and was rejected twice for having flat feet. Also, he is only 4 feet, 11 inches tall.

He wrote President Roosevelt, and he showed the officers his rejection by the adjutant general's office.

The closest he got to the army was playing USO shows in camps in California, where he changed his name to Robert Lee Williams and registered with a Los Angeles draft board. They didn't call him then, but when they did get around to his name, they couldn't find him.

The board ordered Williams released when they learned the true story.

Irate Yank Wipes Out Several Nests of Nazis

WITH THE U. S. 5TH ARMY IN ITALY. — The Germans made a slight mistake in getting Lt. Orville E. Block "riled up" by potshooting at his company, because the little platoon leader wiped out a mountaintopful of the enemy by himself.

When the battle was ended he personally had knocked out five machine-gun nests, killed possibly a half-dozen Germans, captured 19 and wounded six more at Poggia village.

The Congressional Medal of Honor was pinned on Block by Lt. Gen. Truscott, commander of the U. S. 5th army, at a special ceremony.

Block thus became the first living member of the 85th division to win the nation's highest military award, although two others have been awarded the Congressional Medal posthumously. Maj. Gen. John B. Coulter, divisional commander, was present at the ceremony.

Block, who is 29 and 5 feet 3 inches tall, comes from Streeter, N. D., where he worked his way through North Dakota State college.

Persistent Marine Takes Year to Get Back in War

WITH THE MARINES.—He had served the marine corps honorably and well. On Guadalcanal he was seriously wounded, and hospitalized for 11 months. Then he was sent home with an honorable discharge and a pension, reports "The Leatherneck."

But Private Charles L. Judd of Macon, Ga., wasn't ready to accept civilian life and the government pension. He wanted to get back into the fight. It took him almost a year before he could persuade the authorities that he was more ready for battle than for a pension, but he did convince them. He came back into the corps for the second time at the ripe old age of 19.

Rescued Bataan Nurse Wed in Liberated Prison

SANTO TOMAS, LUZON.—A rescued Bataan nurse and a Manila business man were married, the first wedding at this former prison camp since the liberation.

They were Lt. Bertha Helen Dworsky, daughter of Mrs. Anna Dworsky of Hallettsville, Texas, and John Duncan Henderson, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Henderson of Chalfont, England.

The ceremony culminated a romance begun in December, 1943, when Japanese authorities transferred Mr. Henderson to Manila.

4 Soldier 'Wives' Find Out They Really Aren't

ALLIANCE, NEB.—Four Alliance girls who thought they married air force paratroopers here last August have discovered the nuptials were false, "performed" by a soldier impersonating an army chaplain, County Judge Penrose Romic said.

The paratroopers have since gone overseas, the girls told Judge Romic. The judge asserted the girls discovered no marriage certificates had been recorded after applying for government allotment checks.

WELL, GOD, here we are.

You up there. Me down here, with a burning sun, a mess of insects, too much ocean, and other buddies just as lonely as me.

Oh, God, how nice it must be back home, with Germany licked, and the folks humming, and some of the boys all finished with the fighting.

But I guess that wasn't meant for me, was it? And tomorrow and tomorrow I'll still be dodging bullets, still feeling lost in the middle of the night.

Well, no hard feelings.

I'll go wherever You say, and do whatever You want me to. For You know what's best for me.

But say, if You can only get the people back home to remember me, maybe they'll still bear down. Maybe they'll still send us their blood, still stay on the job, still keep making the stuff we need.

You see, God, I'd like to get home, too.

Here's How You Can Check on Your Wage Credits for OASI

Employees desiring to check up on their social security credits can do so by securing a self-addressed post card at any office of the Social Security Board, completing the form on the opposite side and mailing it. A statement will be received within a short period of time, said James L. Farmer, manager of the Amarillo, Texas office.

In case the wage statement fails to conform to the worker's own records, he may call this discrepancy to the attention of the Board and immediate efforts will be made to adjust the matter.

BREEZY

The admiral was examining his youngest officer's knowledge of musical matters.

"Suppose, young man," he rapped out, "you were in charge of this ship and steaming slowly up the Ganges when you received a wireless message reporting a cyclones at sea. What would you do?"

The young man, somewhat flustered, stammered: "I—I'd drop an anchor sir."

"Supposing you received another message half an hour later that the cyclone was over Calcutta. What would you do then?"

"I—I'd drop another anchor, sir."

The admiral looked far from satisfied.

"But suppose it was ten times worse than that. What would you do?"

The young man strove despairingly to think of something bright. At last he whispered: "I—I'd drop another anchor, sir."

"Good Heavens!" roared the admiral, "where the duece do you get all the anchors?"

"And where the deuce," the junior officer flung back at him desperately, "do you get all the wind?"

CARELESS

The editor in charge of the personal inquiry column opened his seventhieth letter with a groan.

"I have lost three husbands," a lady reader had written very confidentially, "and now have the offer of the fourth. Shall I accept him?"

The editor dipped his pen in the ink. This was the last straw.

"If you have lost three husbands," he wrote, "I should say you are much too careless to be trusted with the fourth.

Wired as Human Booby Trap, Yank Awaits the End

His Foot Blown Off, Nazis Tie Explosives to Body And Leave Him.

TEMPLE, TEXAS.—Pvt. William H. Edwards' foot was blown off and he was crying for water, but the three Germans ignored his pleas. They wired explosives to his body, and left him—a human booby trap.

Edwards told his strange story at McCloskey General hospital here . . . how his right foot had been blown off by a mine . . . how the Germans fastened the explosives to him . . . how he knew that if he moved he was doomed . . . or if help came when he was unconscious he and his rescuers would be killed, an Associated Press report says.

And he lay there for hours between American and German lines in the Hurtgen forest, under a constant artillery barrage. German 88 shell fragments hit his left leg as he waited.

It all started simply enough, Private Edwards said. This member of the 4th infantry division, who has a wife and six children in Hayti, Mo., had begun what was to have been a 40-minute night patrol.

Lay Still Through Night.

Near the German lines Edwards stepped on a mine which blew off his foot. He lay quietly until morning, fearing that any sound would betray his comrades.

He could not bandage his wound, but, fortunately, it was one of those curious injuries in which the veins and arteries are forced upward so they are, in a manner, sealed.

At 10:30 a. m. he called for a medic. The enemy heard him and began a search, but did not find him. Soon afterward a pebble hit his leg and he heard an American medic whisper: "Are you a G.I.?"

"Hell, yes, I'm a G.I.," he replied.

"Don't make any noise and we'll get you out," the medic whispered. They crawled to him and lifted him from the ground, but the Germans had seen the rescuers and sent a rifle bullet crashing into the hand of one of the medics.

Medics' Efforts Fail.

Unprotected, they dropped back. Later they tried to get to him again, but German fire drove them away.

When darkness of the second night fell, three Germans came. Edwards asked for a drink of water. They refused it. They took his field jacket, divided up five packages of cigarettes in his pockets, then set to work booby-trapping him.

"I lay on the charge the next day and into the night," he said. "I smoked some cigarettes the Germans failed to find in my shirt pocket. I sure thought I was a goner. I knew I would never leave the forest alive."

About 2 a. m. two men of another company came in to get the wounded. Still conscious, he directed the cutting of the wires to the charge under his back. And they carried him away.

He had lain there for 70 hours.

New Navy Flight Trainer Does All a Plane Will

PATUXENT RIVER NAVAL AIR STATION, MD.—The navy unveiled its new operational flight trainer—an on-the-ground device to train crews for navy patrol bombers.

An electronic model of a Mariner flying boat, it trains flight crews to meet such emergencies as rough air, icing, engine failure. It stimulates actual flying, including the roar of the engines, and has radio communications within the plane and with a mock radio tower.

The trainer is located in one room of a small building. The instructor, in another room, manipulates switches that create various emergencies. Before him are dials, duplicates of those in the simulated plane, which record the trainees' reactions.

Portuguese Boy Designs High Speed Flying Bomb

LISBON.—Joao Alberto Machado, 14-year-old son of poor parents and a student at the Lisbon Industrial institute, was reported to have invented a flying bomb.

A model of the bomb and plans for its construction were said to have been delivered to the air attache of the United States embassy, which sent them to Washington for examination.

The bomb was described as catapult-launched, with a capacity of a little more than a ton of explosives and a speed of about 310 miles an hour.

Scissors Are Lifted Out Of Her After Nine Years

MILWAUKEE.—Mrs. Anna Kulwicki, 43, wife of a tavern keeper and bowling alley operator, has successfully undergone an operation for removal of a pair of incision scissors which had been in her abdomen for nine years. The scissors were discovered through an X-ray examination last month after Mrs. Kulwicki became ill. Her husband, Ted, said at that time that she had felt pain in her abdomen since she had a tumor operation in 1936, when the scissors were apparently left inside the incision. The doctor who performed that operation is now dead.

They are slicing ham so thin nowadays that it has only one side.

Simple Methods Check Ravages of Tiny Moth

Of all household pests, the most devastating is the delicate little moth. Each year it is responsible for millions of dollars worth of damage to fabrics and furs. Last summer was a record season for such losses. Yet homemakers can bring this damage down to almost zero by simple methods: cleanliness, the use of preventive chemicals, and the proper packing and storage of woolen garments while not in use.

The need for preventive treatment is greater now than ever before. Ruin of a single garment may not seem a disaster to the person who has money to replace it, but multiplied by many garments it becomes a serious matter when every additional yard of fabric requires vital raw materials and more manpower.

Whenever possible, garments subject to moth damage should be washed before storing to rid them of the soil, spots, and grease which are so attractive to the moth. Overcoats and other articles that cannot go into the washtub should be drycleaned or should at least be brushed thoroughly to remove dirt from pockets, seams, folds and hems, and should be hung in the sun for several hours. They should then be treated with a moth preventive and placed in a clean, absolutely airtight container or wrapped tightly in clean newspapers.

Balsam of Peru Used Widely in Medicine

Besides serving as a base for perfumes, balsam of Peru has many and varied uses in the medical field. Both its internal and external usage are important. In the treatment of wounds, this Salvadorean product has had the most notable effects. It is said that the first preparation of balsam was invented by Don Jose Eustaquio de Leon of Guatemala but, only a few years ago, several Europeans, among which were Dr. Dumont and Dr. Suter discovered its application in connection with the dressing of wounds. Their process "consists merely in drenching the wound with balsam and then covering it with a sterilized bandage." Word has been received from first-aid stations in battlefronts all over the world, telling of the wonders of this medicament thanks to which "many lives have beeen saved by the quick application of a protective coat of this antiseptic to the surface of wounds." The war has placed balsam of Peru in the front lines of the battle against pain and infection.

Ease Wash Job

Scientists who have studied the washday job suggest "wheeling" loads of clothes rather than lifting and carrying them in the laundry and to the line. A bench or box fitted with casters will hold the basket, hamper or tub in the laundry or near the wash place if work is done outdoors. Other suggestions are that one stand erect at work, sort clothes on a table instead of the floor and place blocks of wood under legs of washing machine or wash bench to bring it to the most comfortable height. This will save one-third of the energy required to put them on the line. A bag for clothes pins, with a draw cord so as to hang in the most convenient place or to be sewed onto a clothes hanger and slipped along the line saves steps. A clothes line should be about 6 feet high for the average woman and should be tight, to save "stretch" in hanging out clothes.

Valuable Vegetable

Spinach may not be the wonderful food that makes Popeye do the feats of strength shown in the cartoons, but it is a valuable item in our vegetable diet, nevertheless. That it is a popular vegetable with Americans is shown by the fact that its consumption has increased about five times in the last 20 years. Moreover, it is one of the best and most easily grown of our common greens. As a commercial crop spinach has many advantages. It is hardy and may be grown somewhere in the United States during all 12 months of the year. It lends itself to iced shipping very easily, and when frozen is so good that the sales of frozen spinach in many places are larger than those of fresh spinach. It may also be canned, but canned spinach is generally thought to be quite inferior to either the fresh or the frozen product.

Wash Machine Care

Don't think you are giving your washing machine all the care it needs just by keeping the machinery properly oiled and greased. Correct lubrication is essential for satisfactory operation, but complete cleanliness is equally important.

Your washing machine should be cleaned thoroughly after each use. Pour in about a pail of clean hot water and let the machine run a couple of minutes. Drain, and wipe dry the inside of the tub and the metal parts.

Always loosen the wringer and wipe the rollers dry. Wipe the entire outside of the machine with a sudsy cloth and then go over it with a dry cloth. When not in use, the washing machine should be protected from dust and dirt with a cloth or cover.

"Well, well, what's all this?" he'll inquire gruffly (as if he didn't know) when Sis and Brother, shining clean and behaving most uncharacteristically, like little angels, present him with a double armload of boxes from Allen & Black's. But watch his blissful expression as he wriggles his toes into the Socks from Sis; note the sparkle in his eyes when he dons Brother's bright plaid shirt—and get that special look he flashes to you, Mother, when he detects your artistic touch in the Toiletries and Ties. "This is heaven," he'll sigh, as he lights his pipe and picks up the Sunday paper. And maybe he's right—certainly there'll be a seraphic glow surrounding Father, you—and the angels!

One line about my having been the victim of a long illness and four lines about a farmer renewnig his subscription! It was a long time before I forgave the press—in fact, it was after I had become a hometown weekly editor myself and realized that there was nothing more important than a subscriber renewing.

When duty calls one's only son away.
What bold fronts we make
In this parting handshake,
All turmoil within, yet outwardly gay—
Each knows that the other wants it that way.

Dad knows well it's a man's part you play;
You must do your duty—all the way
And to these moments we grasp
In a last hearty handclasp
That's more than words as I only say:
So long, Son; Good Luck, until another day.
